

Art House Conspiracies a 60 min TV series

Synopsis Episode 3

A black woman, bound and gagged by hooded men, is taken to an altar where she is drained of blood. In Central Park, listening to a speaker extolling "Power of Blood," John & April question this new credo. Matilda and David's night of sex warms their relationship. Cop-World delves into the blood-letting crime. Adele advises her star artist to "stud around" for a next-level career. April questions the leader of Perfect White about blood-draining murders to find Elmer Quick, head of the Brethren, is responsible. Merlin, leader of Perfect White, explains that freedom from slavers' law and the recognition of mixed-blood destiny is the core of Perfect White. The reality is that all heritage has mixed blood roots. The divine franchise of royalty or any pure blood dogma is an authority argument for executive privilege.

An evening with Alice has saved Reginald from the ABD massacre. Back in the studio, John & Kwon reflect. The Black-Gloved Woman updates "the girls." Stavros, a Greek cop, is on the phone to Diaz who advises him to look out for a Ukranian spy. Jake discovers the identity of the hospital cop killer and calls in a favor from his mob contact. Elmer Quick fans an extremist lust for power with the promise of murderous punishment for the opposition. Jessica Tomas, former secretary of Perfect White and former lover of Elmer Quick, offers a concise explanation for Elmer's delusion to Cop-World psychologist.

Hours later Jessica is found drained of blood. John explains to Diaz that Kwon is more like a mother. Dirty money is discovered to be the last straw convincing the Brethren that violence is the only solution. On Hydra, Anna, a friend of Nikolina, bonds with Zoe. They drink to a life of travel and freedom. A Cop-World psychologist underscores the danger of the Brethren on an international scale. John and Diaz grow closer after a night of love.

Art Group discusses race and their perceived and actual identities. Kwon explains intimate relations for John. April is abducted by Brethren posing as Perfect White. Loyalties are strained by the murder of Jessica. LA hit-man walks into an ambush, and a prison snitch is silenced. Elmer and April debate delusion and reality. Art House Gallery signs Alice to a lucrative exclusive representation deal.

Jake is suspected of murdering an L.A. hit-man. April signals a silent beacon bringing Art Group and Cop-World backup. Amid engagement, disaffected members of the Brethren swear allegiance to April, "The Star." New Jade, Black Boy, and Red Boy keep April safe. True to his name, Quick escapes. Diaz bags key perps and April decides to present her own vision of mixed-blood destiny she calls Perfect Light.